

The red line between collaboration and plagiarism

✓ Collaboration is allowed

- you can explain a concept to someone in another group
- you can discuss algorithms/testing strategies with other groups

⦿ Plagiarism is not allowed

- you cannot discuss specific implementation details
- you cannot look at other people's solutions, including solutions online (e.g. GitHub)
- you cannot publish your own solution online (even after the course term)

◆ Looking for materials is tolerated

- you can look for snippets of code online as long as this piece of code does not directly answer your a specific problem of the assignment
- if you copy more than 5 lines of code, put the source url as a comment in your code
- if you use more than 25 lines, do not copy it

AI Policy

⦿ You cannot use AI to

- Generate code that is part of the assignment solution
- Produce design-document answers

✓ You can use AI to

- Ask high-level conceptual questions about operating systems
- Ask questions to better understand the starter code
- Ask for feedback about your solution and your code
